 - Take note of how the developers go about motivating their work. The texture artist explores textures in their local capital city. The animator of animals spends immense time in and around horses. Each and every member of the team appears almost purpose-built for their role, and they embrace it with the entirety of their being.
- Reminder for mac users– “ALT” means “OPTION” in Blender. If you see a hotkey such as ALT+P, you know to instead press OPTION+P.
- Please start homeworks early so you can get the sleep necessary to level-up. This was late last night.

- Pro strategy on homework1. While the sun shield geometry has been merged into the larger objects, they still use a separate material.
- Amazed by the high-quality work of your peers? Intimidated? Getting impostor syndrome? You're not alone. Remember– many of your peers have pre-existing experience with Blender, art, and technology in general. They may also have lighter schedules than you do (and may thus spend 1hr+ on daily models). Take inspiration from your peers and their amazing work, but try not to compare yourself to them and get yourself down. Your primary rival in this course is last week's version of yourself.
